

John F. Kennedy meeting with Willy Brandt at the White House, 13 March 1961.

The international relinquishing of sovereignty would have to spring from the people – it would have to be so strong that the elected delegates would be turned out of office if they failed to do it.

John F. Kennedy